As churches engage in their communities for justice and peace, for the poor and marginalised...

we encounter some big questions:

- Why are parts of society so resistant to transformation?
- Are 'principalities and powers' a factor to consider - if so what do they look like?
- How do we read the spiritual landscape?
- How do we develop church life that offers hope and light in a world of powers?

Contributors include:

-Dr Parush Parushev, Academic Dean
International Baptist Theological Seminary, Prague

-Geraldine Latty, Worship Leader and director of the Gospel Generation

-Professor Paul Cloke
researching Spiritual Geographies at Exeter university

-Members of the Mainstream Team
