Test of FAITH

THE TOUR

The relationship between science and faith is often represented as a battleground. But are science and Christianity really in conflict?

Bringing clarity to the science-faith debate. Scientists and theologians unpack the key issues. Talk, Q&A and excerpts from the award-winning 'Test of FAITH' documentary.

Test of FAITH is a project of the Faraday Institute for Science and Religion. It began in 2006 in response to a demand for accessible materials on science and Christianity for churches, and others who are interested in these issues. The resources produced so far are a three part documentary on DVD with accompanying course materials and book (Paternoster, 2009), materials for teachers of A-level and GCSE Religious Education (The Stapleford Centre, 2009), online resources for youth groups age 11-18 (www.testoffaith.com/youth), and a website with free resources for download (www.testoffaith.com/resources). Resources for 8-11 year olds are in development.
